for a calendar of events.

I would like to start this month's address by saying congratulations to all of the nominees and winners from the Roaring 20's Awards Gala held at the Four Seasons Hotel late last month. The night was a great celebration of the construction process, highlighting all aspects of the process from owner to the employee in the field. The winning General Contractors of the Year, as voted on by the ASA MWC members, are BSI Constructors, Inc., McGrath & Associates, and G.H. Voss Co., Inc. We look forward to seeing each winner at next month's meeting. Once again I want to thank the gala committee for putting on a wonderful evening, all the effort the committee put in, shows in a great event.

I would like to take this time to urge anyone with Cardinal tickets to donate to our Ticket for the Troops campaign this year. We are looking for tickets throughout the month of July, all tickets will be donated to members of the US Armed Forces through the USO of Missouri. This program has been able to provide a lot of joy to our military men and women over the last 5 years, having raised over $85,000 worth of tickets. This year we are trying to make it the biggest year yet, so if have tickets please donate, and if you would rather donate money we can go buy tickets. Every little bit helps and it goes to a very good cause. Please call Tom McDonnell at George McDonnell & Sons at (314) 581-1681 or Susan Winkelmann (314) 845-0855.

Lastly, I would like to take this chance to promote our newest meeting platform starting in June, BPI in a Box. This has been an idea in the works for a while and will hopefully bring a great benefit to our subcontractor members. BPI in a box, is a lunch meeting that will be limited to only our subcontractor/supplier members and will include our Business Practice Interchange that we normally have at a monthly meeting. The goal is to keep this a short/informational meeting where our members can get BPI in a month that otherwise BPI would not be held. In June, we do not have a typical monthly membership meeting, so no traditional BPI session, due to the Construction Showcase taking place on June 18th. We hope that our subcontractor/supplier members will take advantage of this extra BPI session, and I hope to see you there.

Sincerely,
Vincent Irwin

White Hard Hat Ceremony

Walter Bazan, Jr.

Bazan Painting Co.

I recently attended a WHITE COAT CEREMONY. The White Coat Ceremony is used in the healthcare industry and is symbolic of professionalism and integrity within the healthcare profession, including doctors, pharmacists, dentists, etc. The ceremonial donning of a white coat represents the transition from student to doctor, pharmacist, dentist, etc. Inherent in this transition is a professional obligation and responsibility to uphold the highest ethical standards and to continue education within their profession.

Wouldn't it be nice if construction had our own white coat ceremony? Perhaps it should be a white hard hat ceremony. We need more commitment to ethics and professional constructors that uphold standards within construction. We need people working in construction to be committed to personally developing themselves to continue to educate themselves in order to provide a great product for end users.

Maybe if we developed a white hard hat ceremony, we would develop a greater sense of professionalism, a sense of loyalty to our trade and increase the self esteem of the people in our industry. From the guy swinging the hammer, using a screw gun, spraying a wall, to the person laying the brick, cleaning the floors, etc. This would also obviously include office staff, estimators, and project managers.

ASA is committed to educating the subcontractor members. Through webinars, white papers, materials available on the website, seminars, with cooperation with our partners, the general contractors and owners; much can be accomplished in the way of increasing and maintaining your professionalism in this industry. Maybe someday, we will have our own white hard hat ceremony.

The month of April passed by quickly; however, to date, there has been very little legislation passed. The Senate spent the month of April debating and discussing the State's fiscal year 2015 Budget. As of newsletter press time, the House continued to focus its efforts on passing House bills, with very few Senate bills being debated. This is unusual this time of year. Usually the first to middle of April is when each chamber begins to focus on bills that have moved from the opposite chamber. With such little bill movement thus far, the bills that have moved, will likely be heavily amended with pieces of legislation that are not moving through the legislative process. We are closing in on the end of the 2014 Legislative Session. Pursuant to the Missouri Constitution, session ends Friday, May 16, 2014, at 6:00 p.m.

One of the most controversial issues in the Capitol this year came to a head in the House in mid-April. The House debated and Perfected HB1770 on Right-to-Work. As of newsletter press time, the House had not yet brought the bill up for a final vote as it was having a hard time reaching the 82 votes needed to advance the bill to the Senate.

HB1770 would prohibit an employer from requiring a person to become a member of a labor organization as a condition or continuation of employment. The debate on the bill in Mid-April was surprisingly short but heated. It lasted no more than 45 minutes. House Democratic Leader, Rep. Jake Hummel, gave a short speech about his opposition to the bill, hastily stopped is debate when he was inquired of by Republican Rep. Dave Schatz, and shouted on the floor of the House "Let's quit stalling and vote on this"! After a couple short speeches from a few Republicans a vote was taken and the bill received the constitutional majority (78-68) to be Perfected or receive its first passing vote.

The perfection of this bill was not a win for the Republicans as the bill will need 82 "Yes" votes for its final passing vote (or Third Read Vote) to move the bill out of the House chamber and to the Senate for its consideration. The bill will not be brought up for a final vote unless it is clear the proponents of the bill have secured the 82 votes they need to pass the bill.

The bill specifies that, except in instances when these provisions conflict with or are preempted by federal law, no person as a condition or continuation of employment can be required to: (1) Become or refrain from becoming a member of a labor organization as defined in the bill; (2) Pay dues, fees, assessments, or other charges to a labor organization; or (3) Pay to any charity or third party any equivalent amount in lieu of dues, fees, assessments, or other charges required of a member of a labor organization. Any agreement, understanding, or practice between a labor organization and an employer that violates the rights of employees as guaranteed under these provisions will be unlawful, null and void, and of no legal effect. The bill contains a referendum clause and will not become effective unless approved by a majority of the qualified voters.

Finally, ASA continued its fight to move its legislative agenda. Bills we have filed dealing with retention on public projects are in a good position for passage this year. HB1484 sponsored by Rep. Bart Korman sits on the House Calendar waiting debate. SB529 has passed the Senate and now sits on the House calendar waiting debate and final passage. SB529 will be the vehicle that moves on this issue. It appears we have neutralized all opposition to the bill and hope the bill will be brought up and passed soon.

HB1733 dealing with final lien waiver clarification was voted out of the House Small Business Committee. The bill continues to be highly controversial and as expected has drawn many opponents. It appears this bill has stalled out for the session. The battle with the multitude of opponents and House leadership not wanting to deal with another bill changing the lien laws has stopped the momentum of the bill this year.

In addition, risk transfer has stalled out this session. Controversy over the intent of the language in the bill continues to plague this legislation. Until the language can be worked out, we will have a hard time advancing risk transfer legislation. The current statute is very confusing which has made writing appropriate language difficult at best.

I will continue sending weekly legislative e-mail updates until the end of the 2104 legislative session. I am available at any time to answer any questions you may have regarding any legislation or anything else going on in our State Government.

The Tom Owens Memorial Scholarship is 501(c)(3) non-profit organization that provides financial assistance to qualified candidates who are part-time or full-time students who attend or will be attending accredited junior college, college, university or post-graduate institutions.

The Scholarship Committee will hold their Annual Wine Pull at the St Louis Construction Showcase and BBQ Wednesday, June 18th

We are looking for donations of bottles of wine with a minimum value of $20. If you care to donate, please bring to the May 21st ASA Meeting.

Please consider making a tax deductible donation to the Tom Owens Memorial Scholarship Fund to further our cause today. Visit www.asatomsf.com for details.

MEMBERSHIP

As I look across the construction industry and the affiliated organizations, I cannot help but to be a proud member of the ASA – Midwest Council.

I believe that as far as organizations go, we have some of the best events that the St. Louis construction industry has to offer. The Meet the GC Expo is always one of the premier events to meet professionals face to face across any industry. Our gala continues to be an event for all of the general contractors and sub contractor stars to come out and shine. So, I cannot help but to be excited about the upcoming St. Louis Construction Showcase and BBQ being held at Queeny Park on June 18th from Noon – 7pm.

We will also be holding May's monthly meeting at Syberg's – Dorsett on the 21st. This is a meeting to not be missed as we will be hosting the Gala award winners at this meeting. If you were not able to attend the gala, then make sure that you are there for this meeting. It is also a good idea, that if you would like your company to be in front of all that are in attendance, then talk to Susan about becoming a meeting sponsor.

Take this time to invite a guest to one of the many events that the ASA – Midwest Council will be hosting this summer. Earn your star by obtaining a new member and stay on top of business opportunities earned by effective networking within the organization!

As always, let me know how the membership committee can help you gain all of the possible benefits of being a member of the ASA – Midwest Council.

All the best,

Jennifer Tichacek, C&R Mechanical Company

ASA's Excellence in Ethics Award Application Process Can Help Your Firm Start an Ethics Program

If your firm has implemented, or is developing, a corporate ethics code or training program, you may already have most of the materials you would need to apply for ASA's 2014 Excellence in Ethics Award. If your firm does not yet have an ethics program, following the awards application process can help you start one! ASA's 2014 Excellence in Ethics Award provides national recognition to subcontractors that demonstrate the highest standards of integrity in the construction industry. Award winners are selected based on corporate ethics policies and procedures, construction industry practices, and general business practices.

The award is a great way to let your clients, employees, and others in your community know that your company is committed to professionalism and sound business practices — and including such a distinction in your bids can be a good way to help distinguish your firm from your competitors! ASA has developed a "Model Timeline for Preparing an Application for an ASA 2014 Excellence in Ethics Award," which assigns a completion date to each step in gathering or producing the needed documentation to complete the application, including: finalizing policies, scheduling ethics training, soliciting recommendation letters, arranging for payment of the application fee, and reviewing and submitting the application. Some examples of materials that must be included with your application are: an internal financial controls policy, a non-discrimination and/or anti-harassment policy, a process for timely and fair resolution of customer complaints, and a recommendation letter from a competitor, a customer, and a supplier.

Awards applications will be evaluated by Nitish Singh, Ph.D., an associate professor in International Business and the program leader of the Certificate in Corporate Ethics & Compliance Management at Saint Louis University, St. Louis, Mo. Dr. Singh also runs a consulting firm, IntegTree, LLC, with his business partner, Thomas Bussen, JD, MBA, providing ethics and compliance training and advisory services. For more information on ethics and compliance services, email Dr. Singh. Dr. Singh also serves as co-chair for the Brand2Global: Global Branding & Digital Medial Annual Conference.

Read ASA's 2014 Excellence in Ethics Awards brochure to learn about the awards judging criteria and submission requirements. ASA also provides a resource guide to help firms prepare and submit applications. This guide contains model documents, such as sample recommendation letter requests and model policies on topics ranging from competition and conflicts of interest to internal procedures and whistle blowing. The application deadline is Dec. 12, 2014. ASA will present the 2014 Excellence in Ethics Awards at its annual convention, SUBExcel 2015, which will take place March 26-29, 2015, in Seattle, Wash. Learn more about the ASA Excellence in Ethics Awards on the ASA Web site under "Education & Events."

Zero Tolerance Safety Policy?

Mike Sicking, Safety International

I am starting to see more and more Pre job specifications stating that there will be a “Zero Tolerance Policy” for workplace safety violations.

It’s no secret that violence, drugs, harassment and discrimination are part of the workplace. Over the years, each issue has attracted plenty of attention, and forced HR to search for solutions. In some cases, organizations have turned to security-based solutions to restrict entry to work areas. In other instances, companies have implemented policies—ranging from drug testing to diversity training—to eradicate incidents and educate employees. Now this same no tolerance level has worked its way down into our construction arena.

It’s not difficult to understand why. The fallout from an incident—or perceived incident—can send shockwaves through a company, harm a general contractor’s reputation, and create a public relations nightmare for the end user customer of the project. We like to think this is only about the safety of the employee, but common sense tells us it runs much deeper than that.

So what can you do to acclimate yourself to this new way of performing work?

- √ Take a hard look at your company and ask yourself, “Do we have a safety culture in our company?”
- √ If the answer is “No” or “I am not sure” take advantage of your ASA safety committee and ask us for some suggestions.
- √ Communications are key. Make sure all of your employees are well aware of all the required safety protocols for this particular job and they know about the Zero Tolerance policy.

√ Let them know this is the way of the future so they should practice increased emphasis on safety for every job you do regardless of size.

√ Update any required training and create any job specific training that would be helpful.

√ You, as the owner, should make more frequent trips to the job and make sure you always bring up safety in your conversations while there.

These are just a few of many tools you can utilize. The most important thing to remember and convey to all your workers is that Safety has become a very important component in the total building process.

As always, if you have any further questions please feel free to contact me or one of our safety committee members.
Stay Safe!
